SENIORS HEAR BACCALAUREATE

REV. BAUGHN, PREACHES IMPRESSIVE SERMON.

The class of 1924 was privileged to listen to a very impressive baccalaureate sermon, Sunday evening at the School auditorium, by Rev. J. Herman Baughn of the M. E. church.

Rev. Baughn took for his text Matthew 6:33—"Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness: and all these things shall be added unto you." He said in part as follows:

You have reached an end that marks another beginning. Each succeeding success ought to set a new goal. Each defeat in life should afford an opportunity for a new start.

You have finished only a part of your course. You have many things yet to learn. Even if you knew all and stopped now you would be referred to in ten years as an old, 1924 model.

I congratulate you on having finished the prescribed course of study and are now about to pass out of the school of the state into the school of life, out of the barracks into the line of battle, out of the theoretical into the practical.

In planning for your future you have considered at least these three questions:

1. "What will I do with my life?"
2. "Why will I do the thing I will do with it?"
3. "How will I do the thing I want to do with it?"

In choosing your life task I would have you remember that the next decade will mean an unprecedented period of prosperity for you. It will mean more to you than it will to any other class of people. It will open new opportunities and privileges.

I am not here to tell you what calling, vocation or occupation you should select for these will merely be the way you will express what you already have done.

But as you choose your vocation in life remember the words of Jesus: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you."

Let me answer this first question you have asked yourself, "What shall I do with my life?" If you are to do anything worth while in the world you must develop your soul. You must elect a course in soul-development using the bible as your textbook.

Under the second question, "The motive for doing," Rev. Baughn said there were three grades of achievement that were measured by the motives that actuate life:

- (1) The achievement due to the call of money.
- (2) The achievement due to the call of ambition.
- (3) The achievement due to the call of service.

The first two have long been discredited as legitimate motives for achievement. One should constantly endeavor to be a success but the world's idea of what constitutes success is changing continually.

In seeking the answer to the second question let me urge you to develop your soul life in order that you may be better fitted to serve the present age, your calling to fulfill.

Question Three: "How is all this to be accomplished?" The secret of the answer to this question is the willingness to learn. For life demands a student and not a graduate. Life has no use for graduates in its scheme of events.

I would have you remember that C-o-m-m-e-n-c-e-m-e-n-t does not spell "Finished." All too many look upon their graduation day as the finish of their education.

So this is not the end of your education but the matriculation into the school of experience. In this day of extremes the spiritual has a hard time of getting its place in the scheme of events. Occasionally our daily papers get in an editorial of a religious nature, but if they were to leave off printing the seamy side of life they would go bankrupt mighty quick. I say this because much of your education will be gleaned from the daily press from now on. The daily newspaper is a fair indicator of the views of the people and they show how much the average man's views are out of proportion with life.

Young man! Young woman! Never discount the value of the Spiritual. The greatest influence in America is the little red school-house and the church in the valley by the wildwood.

You will not all be presidents, although I suspect you would rather I had not told you that, neither will you all become rich or famous, but the highest estate is open to you—a true personality, a character four-square.

Rev. Baughn illustrated his address by reciting many instances and experiences of others, thus adding much interest and impressiveness.

The platform was nicely decorated with apple blossoms and wild flowers and looked very pretty. A large choir and three musical numbers added greatly to the pleasantness of the occasion. There was a delightful duet by Mrs. Roy Milnes and Mrs. Harold Jarvin, a beautiful solo rendered by Mrs. Charles Gothro and a violin solo by Herman Hanson. Mrs. B. E. Smith accompanied on the piano for each.

DOGS DOING DAMAGE IN GAR-DENS.

Complaints are coming to this office that dogs are destroying gardens and property about the yards and homes.

One gentleman from the south side says that his yard is pestered every day by dogs running into his garden and wallowing about. Dog owners are responsible for any damage done and if their dogs are allowed to run at large, they must expect to pay for any damage they may do.

WOLFF HOME ROBBED OF $20,000 GEMS

From Chicago Saturday Evening Post, Saturday, June 7, 1924.

Burglars broke into two Gold Coast homes late last night and looted them of jewelry and wearing apparel valued at upward of $20,000.

As a result, extra police probably will be assigned to protect the fashionable district against future marauders.

The homes visited by the thieves were those of Herbert W. Wolff, 1317 Ritchie court, vice president of the American Car and Foundry company, and Ralph Otis, 1352 Astor street, real estate operator.

Steal Valuable Gems. From the Wolff residence intruders stole diamonds and other valuable stones and jewelry estimated at approximately $20,000. From the Otis apartment the loot was not determined; but was believed to run above $1,000.

The first burglary was discovered by Mrs. Wolff when she and her daughter, Marjorie, returned from the Ambassador hotel. Discovering one room in a disarranged condition, Mrs. Wolff became alarmed, thinking the robbers were still in the house. She called Niels Jensen, private watchman.

The burglars evidently had been in the house but a short time as only two rooms had been visited. The largest haul was made in Mrs. Wolff's room, where a jewelry box containing $10,000 worth of valuables was rifled.

PHYSICAL TRAINING DEMONSTRATION

SCHOOL CLASSES RENDER PUBLIC PROGRAM.

The classes in physical training that have been under direction of Miss Margaret Curtis during the past year, gave a very interesting public demonstration last week Friday evening at the school gymnasium.

This was followed by an exhibit of needle work by the classes in domestic science, under the direction of Miss Ethel Sprague. Both were very excellent and reflect great credit upon these two teachers.

There were ten individual numbers on the physical demonstration program and each was carried out like clockwork. The folk dances, relay races and story plays by the little tots of the 2nd, 3rd and 4th grades were delightful. The wand drill and free drill exercises by the pupils of the 4th, 5th and sixth grades were nicely executed. An esthetic dance by the Misses Margrethe and Ella Hansen was as usual very graceful and pleasing.

The indoor-base ball game between the Junior and Senior high school girls made a great hit. They played two innings, the Juniors winning 3 to 1. And the clown, led by Junior and Senior girls took the audience by storm. Hi Henry, Lew Dockstetter or any of the great minstrel lights would have been proud to have had this number or their program. They had to respond to an encore.

The program was closed with a May pole by girls from the grades, which was very prettily done.

Sewing Exhibit.

An exhibit by the young ladies of Miss Sprague's sewing classes presented an exhibit of the work they had learned to do during the school year. There were many nicely made dresses and all kinds of white goods and embroidery work. It was quite an eye-opener to those who were not familiar with the work of this department, to learn of the practical things that are being taught to our girls in this department, and to see such excellent examples of dressmaking and other sewing.

Feed Trustees and Faculty.

Of course it would have been difficult for the cooking classes of the domestic science department to have given a public demonstration of their work, however they took pleasure in inviting the school board and their wives and the school faculty to dine with them Friday night at 8 o'clock. About thirty sat down to a meal that was cooked and served by the young ladies, and those who were there were delightfully pleased. In this work too, Miss Sprague has done excellent work, and we are pleased to say will return next year.

VACCINATION RUMORS.

Dr. DeKline, Saginaw City Health Officer has the following to say about vaccination:

Every now and then a report is circulated about someone dying as a result of vaccination. People responsible for starting such reports are usually chronic rumor mongers. They are not competent to judge the facts in the case, but like to say sensational things and so they tell these terrible tales.

I have had an unusually large experience with vaccination. I have vaccinated with my own hands over 10,000 people, and have supervised the vaccination of perhaps 10,000 more. Among all these I have yet to see the first child, man or woman, who was injured in the least, by it. I have yet to see the first one who even made a semblance of an approach to death or loss of an arm caused by vaccination as is so frequently reported. I have heard all kinds of rumors, but when they were checked up they had no foundation to them.

Flag Day SATURDAY, JUNE 14.

Governor Alex J. Groesbeck has proclaimed Saturday, June 14th, 1924 as Flag Day, and urges that the flag not only be displayed wherever possible but that communities, schools and other organizations conduct appropriate exercises. It would be good Americanism, too, he says, if each motion picture theatre on Flag Day would flash on the screen a picture of the Nation's emblem.

CLASS 1924 GRADUATION EXERCISES

The Class day exercises of the class of 1924 were held at the School auditorium Wednesday night, and was well attended. A profusion of fragrant lilacs adorned the stage, across the top of which was the class motto "Forward".

SCOUT WORK PLAN-NED FOR SUMMER

GEO. M. RICHARDS OF SAGINAW ENGAGED FOR INSTRUCTION.

George M. Richards, who has been secured by the Council for play-ground and Scout work this summer, spent Wednesday afternoon in the city looking over the ground for the summer's work. He was favorably impressed with the progress of the work so far and was enthusiastic about the plans for the future.

Mr. Richards has had some experience in scouting, three years in Saginaw and the last few months in Mt. Pleasant. He wishes to make the announcement:

All boys who are interested in the work, which will include hikes, camping trips and general instructions in playground work and in the rudiments of scouting, all parents who are interested and who wish to have their boys become associated with this movement are requested to register at the Avalanche office.

An announcement will be made later as Mr. Richards will not be here permanently until after the twentieth of the month, and wishes to have everything in readiness to take up the work.

ODDFELLOWS AND REBEKAHS HELD ANNUAL MEMORIAL.

Grayling Lodge I. O. O. F. No. 137 and Grayling Rebekah Lodge No. 352 held their annual memorial services Sunday and had one of the finest turnouts they have had for some time. At 9:30 o'clock in the morning members of both orders met at the Oddfellow temple, where they formed in line and headed by the Cl-zen's band marched to Danebod hall. At Danebod hall, Rev. Baughn delivered the Memorial address, taking for his text Psalm 135:1—Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity.

That they may be one. These fathers are in me and I in thee that they may also be in us that the world may believe that thou didst send me. St. John's 17:21. During the service the choir rendered many beautiful hymns.

On leaving Danebod hall the Oddfellows again formed in line and marched to the cemetery, while the Rebekah ladies rode in autos. The Orders were honored by having Grand Secretary Rogers of Lansing with them on the occasion. At the cemetery the 45 graves of deceased members of both organizations were decorated with flowers, after which the usual ritualistic service was held.

PUBLIC DEBT CUT $350,000,000

New Short Time Loans Carry Lowest

Interest Rate Since War.

Washington—Pre-war interest rates appear on government securities with the announcement by the treasury of its June fiscal program. The operation includes an issue of $150,000,000 in certificates of indebtedness and in effect a cut in the public debt of $350,000,000.

The new certificates bear interest of 3 1/4 per cent, the lowest rate the government has paid in any of its war or post-war financing and probably lower than that of any government during the period since the World war opened in 1914. The issue is dated June 15 and matures next December 15.

WE NEED TWO PARTIES.

No matter how ardently we may believe in the Republican party, we must concede that there will be one other called the Democratic party. Besides these two parties, the history of America has demonstrated that other parties come and go, but these two remain.

HEALTH CENTER TO BE OPEN DAILY.

Special arrangements have been made for keeping open the County Health center each day this summer from 2:30 to 4:00 p. m. This will be in charge of capable instructors. There will be classes in nutrition and speech defect, and also for the Little Mothers' League.

Already about 50 children have been vaccinated, and last Monday 17 more were added to the list. Next Monday will be the last clinic for vaccination and also for administering the final dose of toxoid anti-toxin. This will be at the Health Center at 9:00 a. m.

Every case of chickenpox must be seen by a physician, according to the State law. Chickenpox so resembles a mild case of smallpox that to ignore it is to invite troubles for the community.

It is a very virulent form of smallpox that is now going the rounds in Detroit and it is getting out in the state. Don't trust to old vaccinations. Ask the doctor; see that you are protected. In all the vaccinations there is no reason for infection if care is used and dressing is taken care of.

Let us try this summer to keep all infection down by guarding the very first case and let us make Grayling the healthiest town in Michigan, as the locality would favor its being.

Christening Party.

The little ones and the mothers will be interested in the christening party that is to be given at the Health center Saturday afternoon from 2:30 to 4:00 o'clock when the new Health Center baby doll will be christened. This was purchased by the Little Mothers' League, and cost $12.00. It is waterproof and can be bathed. The children learn on this doll how to handle and care for a real baby.

At this party cake and lemonade will be served if the weather is favorable, and if not, cocoa will be served. A small charge will be made and the money will be used for purchasing cloth by the Little Mothers' League for making clothes for the baby. Mothers are specially invited.

MERCY HOSPITAL GRADUATES NURSE

MISS ROSINA CATHARINE KELLING FINISHES COURSE.

The Sisters of Mercy of Mercy hospital announce the completion of the course of Rosina Catharine Kelling in the nurses training school of that institution, June 10th, at which time Miss Kelling will be awarded a diploma qualifying her as a graduate nurse.

Three years of training under the able instruction of our local physicians and Sisters of Mercy and practical experience in the sick room and operating rooms has given Miss Kelling education in the profession of nursing that is most thorough, and qualifies her to meet the high standard that is required today of graduate nurses.

Miss Kelling has adopted as her class motto, "I serve." The class flower is Sweet Pea; and class colors blue, green and orchid. Very handsome announcements have been sent to friends of Miss Kelling and the hospital.

Miss Kelling is a sister of Sister Mary Theodora at Mercy Hospital and is to be congratulated upon her success. After August she will be at home to her friends at Grand Rapids, Mich.

TAX REFUND WILL BE DELAYED

Congress Fails to Act On Necessary Appropriation, No Funds.

Washington—Due to the failure of Congress to act on the necessary appropriation before adjournment, refunds to taxpayers who have paid all their 1923 income tax cannot be made before next winter, it has been announced at the treasury department.

Secretary Mellon had asked an appropriation of $16,000,000 for this purpose, but it was carried in a bill which failed to pass.

The refunds were authorized under the new tax law which reduced the year's income taxes 25 per cent.

MICHIGAN INHERITANCE TAX LAW

Material changes were made by the Legislature in 1923. The most important involve the taxation of real estate to persons who previously enjoyed exemption, increase in the rate of taxation, taxation of gifts made within two years before date of death and increases in the amount of exemptions.

"A WHOPPER"

SYNOPSIS—Word that their mighty troika are distasteful to a party of "high-toned Britishers" recently arrived at the Lodge, among them an army captain and his sister, is brought to the attention of the British party. Jack Kilmeny (known to his friends as Crumb), and some friends camping on the Gunnison in Colorado. Called to account for the uproar by Dobyans Verinder, another millionaire member of the British party. Jack snubs that individual and has a friendly chat with Moya Dwight, attractive Irish girl. He also meets Joyce Seldon, a famous beauty.

CHAPTER II

Night Fishing

Next day brought Kilmeny the office of camp cook, which was taken in turn by each of the men. Only two meals a day were eaten in camp, so that he had several hours of leisure after the breakfast things were cleared away.

The arrival of the party at the Lodge brought back to him vividly some chapters of his life that had long been buried. His father, Arthur Kilmeny, had married the daughter of a small cattleman some years after he had come to Colorado. Though she had died while he was a child, Jack still held warmly in his heart some vivid memories of the passionate, unscarred woman who had been his mother.

She had been a belle in the country, charming in her way, beautiful to the day of her death, but without education or restraint. Her husband had made the mistake of taking her back to Ireland on a visit to his people. The result had been unfortunate. She was extravagantly, even vindictive, entirely democratic, as one turned to her for comfort. Over her temper was of the whirlwind variety. The staff life of the old country, with its well-ordered distinctions of class and ritual conventions, did not suit her at all. All traditions which she could not understand the young wife scorned. Before she left, felled dislike became almost open war. The visit had never been repeated, nor, indeed, had she ever been invited again. This she had bitterly resented and she had married into Jack the antagonism she herself felt. When he was eight years old, Jack's father had died, and on taking him back to meet his relatives, he immediately brought his return to the young man's mother, and she had understood the any goodness she might have had for his British kindred. Three years later she had died.

She had been a doting mother, with fierce gusts of passionate affection for her boy. Jack remembered the day after he forgot her less amiable qualities. He had grown up with an unreasonable feeling of dislike toward those of his father's family who had failed to get along with her. Some instinct of loyalty which he would have to define for himself unconsciously in an antagonism to his cousins at the Lodge. He had decided not to make himself known to them. In a few days their paths would diverge again for all time.

Dusk found him in the river just above the riffles. He fished down the stream slowly, shortening his time as darkness settled over the hills. He was nearly opposite the Lodge when he noticed a fisherman in front of him. Working steadily forward, Kilmeny found himself gaining on the other. In order not to pass too near he struck out into the deeper water toward the center of the river. When almost opposite the other he heard a splash not twenty feet away, followed by the whirl of the reel as the trout made for the deep water. From the shadows where his unknown companion was obscured came the click of the line being wound up. There was a flash of silver in the moonlight, and again the rapid whirl of the reel.

"You've hooked a whale, neighbor," Kilmeny called across.

The voice that came back to him across the water was eager and glad. Jack would have known its throat of youthful zeal among a thousand. "Must I let him have all the line he wants?"

Kilmeny wanted toward her as he gave counsel. "Don't make it too easy for him, but don't jerk. Keep his nose up if you can."

The trout fought gamely and strongly, but the young woman stuck to her work and would not give him any rest. Jack watched her carefully. He saw that she was tiring, but he did not offer any help, for he knew that she was a sportsman. She would want to win alone or not at all.

Y—he moved closer. The water was up to her hips, and no river in the Rockies has a swifter current than the Gunnison. The bottom, too, is covered with smooth slippery stones and boulders, so that a mistep might send her plunging down. Deprived of the use of her landing pole, she could make less resistance to the tug of the stream, and the four or five pounds of dynamic energy at the end of her line would give her all she could do to take care of for the next few minutes.

Her pole was braced against her body, which made reeling difficult. The man beside her observed that except for a tendency to raise the pole too much she was playing her trout like a veteran.

"The thing that he had anticipated happened. Her foot slipped from its secure rock hold and she stumbled. His arm was round her waist in an instant.

"Steady! Take your time."

"Thanks. I'm all right now."

His right arm still gripped her slight figure. The trout was tiring, inch by inch she brought him nearer. Presently she panted: "My landing net."

It was caught in the reel, Kilmeny unfished the net and brought it round where it would be ready for instant use.

"Tell me what I must do now."

"He's hooked pretty fast. Take your time about getting him into your net, and be careful then. These big fellows are likely to squirm away."

It was a foolish moment when she let go of the rod with her left hand to slip the net under the trout, but she negotiated it in safety.

"Isn't he a whopper?" she cried in delight.

"He won't go into the reel at all."

"Then let me have him. The glory is yours. I'll be your guide to carry the same bag."

He put his fingers through its gill before he took the hook from the mouth of the fish. Carrying the trout in one hand and his pole in the other, he waded slowly through the swift water to the shore.

The girl's vibrant voice came to him as she splashed at his heels toward the bank. "He's such a ripping good one. I'm so pleased. How much do you think he will weigh?"

"My guess is six pounds. These are the biggest taken this year so far. I congratulate you, Miss Dwight."

He could not have said more than that if he had not been so glad to see her. He had not been there to help her with the fish. But he had reached the shore before she had reached the bank. He had been there to help her with the fish. But he had reached the shore before she had reached the bank.

It was no joke to him, one of these big fellows. "I saw you were tired. But the sporting thing to play your own fish."

His dark eyes flashed in a momentary glance at him. She had been brought up in the society where class lines were clearly drawn, but her experience gave her no data for judging this young man's social standing. A faint impulse of old Ballard, the caterer at the Lodge, had brought her the information that the party of fishermen was different from the rest. This and

She flashed upon him the fish that had been hidden behind her waders.

"By Jove! Catch him yourself!"

She nodded, her eyes shining.

Farquhar, very much a sportsman, wanted to know all about it, after which he insisted on weighing the trout. Jack was dragged into the Lodge to join in this function, and presently found himself meeting Lady

Farquhar, a plump lady with a smile was warm for this simple blue eyes engaging westerner, but the latter did not need to be told that behind her friendliness the instinct of the chaperon was alert. The one swift glance she had thrown at Miss Dwight told him as much.

Into the room drifted presently Miss

Seldon, a late novel in her hand.

Joyce Seldon was frankly a beauty in every line and feature. Her exquisite coloring, the soft amber hair so extravagant in quantity, the long lashes which shaded deep lovely eyes, satisfied the senses no less than the supple rounded young body which was carried with such light grace. Kilmeny was not very impressionable, but in her presence the world seemed somehow storied through with a new radiance. She laid upon him the spell of women.

Presently Dobyans Verinder dropped in with an empty reel and opened wide, supercilious eyes at sight of Jack. He was followed presently by Captain Kilmeny and his sister, India, the latter a pretty Irish girl, quick of tongue, quicker of eye and ready for anything from fishing to fighting.

From the little Jack gathered that Lord Farquhar and Miss Dwight had but their catch would outweigh that of the other three. Farquhar and she to fish opposite the Lodge and the others built a little below. The minor ity party had won easily, thanks to the big trout and Verinder's obstinacy in sticking to the flies he had used in England with success. There is a type of Englishman that goes through up-using the flies he was brought up on and trying to make them fit all places and times. Any divergence is a form of treason. Neither Farquhar nor Kilmeny happened to be of that kind.

Supper, to which Lady Farquhar had insisted that the Americans stay, was being served informally in the dining room. Verinder helped himself to a sandwich, saying Moya, she while with his eyes.

"I say, you know, I believe in you,"

Miss Dwight, he asserted.

"That young man did not know what he was doing. He was only trying to get on with his usual business, and he was doing it very well. But he was not a sportsman.

He was only a fisherman. He was only a fisherman. He was only a fisherman. He was only a fisherman.

Fugitives From Justice

At the Lodge the whole party was down by nine-thirty and was on the road within the hour. The horses were that Joyce, who was riding beside the captain, found opportunity for conversation.

"You sat up late, didn't you?"

"Early," the soldier laughed.

"How did the savage behave himself? He has a good deal of assurance, hasn't he?" she asked lightly.

"The captain hesitated. "Do you think that's quite the word? He acted

SUFFERED SINCE YOUNG GIRL

Words Failed to Express Benefit Received from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Greenville, Texas.—"Words cannot express how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. Every month I would have cramps and headaches, and I felt like I was freezing myself. I suffered in this way from the time I was a young girl, and all the doctors said was 'operation.' For months I had a dread, sleepless feeling all day, and when night would come I would be so nervous I couldn't stay in bed. Our druggist recommended the Vegetable Compound to my husband and he bought four bottles. I have taken every one and I think I have a right to tell your medicine. Mrs. J. B. HOLLEMAN, 224 E. Marshall Street, Greenville, Texas.

For fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been used by women from girlhood through middle age. It is a dependable medicine for troubles common to women. Such symptoms as Mrs. Holleman had are relieved by correcting the cause of the trouble. For sale by druggists everywhere.

The AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

RADIO IS USED TO TELL OF WAR WORK

The fact that a great many girls and women enlisted in the United States forces during the World War has escaped general attention. A fair was made at one time about the yeomanettes, but was soon forgotten. Now comes Helen E. Bucking, commander of Women's Post No. 118 of the American Legion at Norfolk, Va., as the first woman veteran of the war to use the radio in telling what she and her compatriots did towards winning the war. The speech was delivered from station WFAA and resulted in a wide dissemination of knowledge concerning the part played in the war by the woman.

All the members of women's post served in the navy as yeomanettes during the war, or as overseas nurses. The post has made a distinct hit with the citizens of Norfolk because of its work in the hospitals. Commander Bucking declared, in her address, Disabled ex-service men, needy veterans, hungry veterans—all find succor at the women's post regardless of reasons. When other welfare agencies turn down the veteran, the women's post puts him on his feet—and has been doing this work for four years. Commander Bucking said, "Tuberculous veterans are indeed grateful to the women's post as being most instrumental in getting immediate care for them. Even the nurses and physicians in hospitals are enthusiastic in talking about the work done by the women's post which is one of the very few in existence in the country.

In the three government hospitals located at Norfolk were many men suffering from tuberculosis. The women's post is active in making beautiful handmade quilts. The women's post found this out and arranged to dispose of their quilts. They rented a store, gathered the work from the three hospitals and made attractive their window displays. They spent money on advertising, talked to Rotarians, Kiwanians, Christians and other bodies, used moving picture slides and urged men to bring their wives, and women to bring their husbands to the exhibit and sale. Quilts were sold out. The newspapers gave much-needed publicity. And then it was that Commander Bucking got on the radio and broadcast a story of her post and what it was accomplishing for the disabled veteran.

More than five hundred articles were sold, a woman in Florida writing with a check to a friend asking her to buy something. In Wisconsin a woman did the same. The sale of disabled veteran products will become a regular feature of the women's post's activities. And Commander Bucking, whose photograph is reproduced, is entitled to the credit for the getting spirit that put the women's post in the forefront of activities for relief of disabled men.

Wisconsin Post Needs Just One Member

American Legion officials in Burlington, Wis., are worried. The annual membership drive went over to the satisfaction of the post—the members secured surpassed the membership of 1933. But when a revision of the roster was made the total was found one short of the quota expected of the post by department headquarters. Because the territory has been thoroughly combed for members, post officials believe that they may have to import a veteran to obtain the needed member.

Musical Post Ball

Vincent Lopez and the Hotel Pennsylvania orchestra recently furnished music for the dance of the Oneonta post of the American Legion in New York. Lopez had been making a number of appearances in the state, and agreed to play for the Legion men on the occasion of their annual ball.

Visited War Gas Plant

Delegates to a district convention of the American Legion held in Midland, Mich., were guests at the Big Dow Chemical plant where many of the most deadly of war gases and other chemicals are manufactured from salt brine.

Field for Legion Games

An offer of a citizen to the American Legion in Albuquerque, N. M., for use of a local amusement park as a playing field for Legion games has been accepted by post officials. The post will be represented by a fast, semiprofessional baseball club.

Styled of Hairline Cloth; New Blouses of Printed Silk

LET us pay compliment to fashion this season, for being so eminently consistent. If a costume is tailored, and this is the outstanding signpost in the style of the moment, it is strictly what it professes to be, even to the slightest detail. One dare not even omit the prim white garter from the conventional lapel of one's coat, nor is the ensemble complete without the swaggy stick carried just so. Even one's cologne assumes a tailored aspect. At least it is bobbied and marcelled so precisely, it would seem as if with intention to fit into the scheme of modes tailored.

If one would represent fashion at

A TRIG STREET SUIT

Its tailored best, one selects for her trig street suit black hairdressed with white. What joy these tailored stripes are to designers! They take a genuine delight in giving the horizontal against the vertical, which is an instance transgressing the law of "strictly tailored." Note how the horizontal plus the vertical delivers one in the clever pockets—nest at each side. Also a unique belt is wrought under each arm in such a way as to slightly conform the line of the coat to the curve of the body, an idea georgette print, conservatism is cast to the winds. Just as colorful as can be—the effect of the black and white. Since considerable responsibility rests in the blouse, for true it is that it either makes or mars the costume, it is well worth one's while to make careful selection. A model, which is 100 per cent attractive, is illustrated here. Scarlet printed on an ecru background, with a wide band of yellow tint, is its color description. The manner in which the underarm portion forms a gentle bump to the front with long lines of the material, is most unusual. Very fine tucked not combined with real Irish checked lace in the finger tip and collar effect, also cuffs.

Many front fastenings to the blouse are elaborated with printed bands of lace, and a wide band of the ecru plain white ecru de elite placed with the gay silk of the blouse. Frequently the trim is carried out in cuffs and collars to match the trim.

As to the blouse of pure white ecru de elite, it is more and more to be finished with pinings of black and frequently there is a muslin trim alone in black.

Inserts of tucked bands are used in most intriguing ways. Indeed, the blouse self-trimmed with laces and pinings expresses the last word in the season's modes.

Buttons are very important as a mode of interesting bright color to the blouse.

LACE LENDS CHARM TO BLOUSE

which is being accepted by the French women in their tailored suits.

The story of this and similar fall dress ensembles is not complete without referring to the manner in which many of these pictures swatches at a glance. As yet this long effect of a skirt about her throat. Everybody's doing it these days—wearing scarfs in just this way with their street suits. Of course the scarf must be gay, Roman-striped, plaided or in a solid high shade. In the latter instance, scarf, capelet and swaggy stick are often color-matched.

Tailored suits are of a varied all bouffant, in that short boyish coats complete with those of more formal length. The very latest idea is the decorative scheme. For instance, a white blouse piped with yellow, sports yellow bone buttons down its belted front, repeating them on the pockets and cuffs.

There is every promise for the tulle blouse. As yet this long effect of a skirt about her throat. Everybody's doing it these days—wearing scarfs in just this way with their street suits. THE ASPARAGUS BED

The asparagus bed demanded more attention and more time than any other bed in the garden. Of course the others had to be looked after and the weeds pulled out of the way and the beans and the potatoes all liked to be lived around about themselves.

But the asparagus bed was very fussy. It liked so much attention. Yet it did not give as much asparagus as the other vegetables gave of themselves. It gave enough so that the different members of the family in turn had a dish of asparagus but as for the whole family having it at one time—no, no, the asparagus bed did not allow that.

Perhaps in some places it was different but here the asparagus bed loved the attention and loved the fussing and did not want to spoil the family.

And they certainly never had the chance to get tired of it, with only one dish of it at a time.

It was a rule in the family that no one must take nor receive from the one whose turn it was to have asparagus a single stalk of it.

There was a rule about this. And no one felt envious of the one whose turn it was for that was the rule and it was a fair rule.

How irritated the family were when they saw that the asparagus bed was not doing its duty and knew that yet another turn would come around.

But always out in the garden when the family were all at dinner, the vegetables all started talking.

"I'd be ashamed if I were you, asparagus," said the potato, "because you're not like that."

"No," said the asparagus, "and you're never a trout. You're just good, wholesome potatoes."

"You're not unusual. You're not a delicacy. You spoil the people that's what you do."

"I suppose you think we do, the same, don't you?"

"Of course I do," answered the asparagus. "You let yourself become so common that they put you in stew. So don't put the members of our family in a stew."

"And as for the radishes—growing up in different eras and the lettuce too—well really, you just spoil the people beyond all words."

"Even the cucumbers and the tomatoes will do the same."

"And there are the beans and the peas—well they never act like that."

"It's true they never would," said the potatoes. "Maybe we do let ourselves become common."

"And maybe we do, too," said the beans. "And the same may be true of us."

But later on the family were out in the garden and they said: "It will be several days before we can get another dish out of that asparagus bed and the asparagus is so good."

"But while it's a luxury it is our other vegetables really which feed us and give us strength. They're the vegetables to stand by us."

And the other vegetables all felt better, for there was something really and reliable and friendly and nice about not being too superior.

But the asparagus bed kept its own ways and perhaps that was a good thing, for it wouldn't be so nice if everything became too usual and nothing could be a treat.

Seven Points of Supremacy

1. The sole used in "FOOT-FITTERS" is of the best quality obtainable. The soles are cut from standard outside leather.
2. "FOOT-FITTERS" are the only shoes in the world having full length vamp and sole leather box toes. This feature prevents slipping at the tip and makes a smooth outer and inner surface.
3. The insole are shoulder channelled so that they fit tightly against the outside. There is no need or room for a cork filler. A small piece of duck is used to prevent squeaking.
4. The Calfein inside counter pocket is of great value, for it saves the wear on the heels. There is no rough surface to rub against.
5. "FOOT-FITTERS" heels are 1/2 inch longer than generally used. They give additional support to the arch and increase the comfort and wear of the shoe.
6. The vamp is reinforced with 8-oz. duck. This absorbs the moisture from the foot, thus keeps the vamp from cracking and holds the shoe in shape.
7. Edmond's "FOOT-FITTERS" shoes are called "FOOT-FITTERS" because they fit the foot snugly. Built on combination last they support the foot like a doctor's bandage. "FOOT-FITTERS" give comfort, service and appearance.

EDMOND'S == FOOTFITTERS

The home of Mrs. Mary Knight was partly destroyed by fire Sunday night at about 10 o'clock, suffering about $800 damage. The origin of the fire is not positively known but it is believed that while Mrs. Knight had a lighted match in a closet that a spark might have fallen in to some combustible place. Most of the furniture was saved, but the inside of the building is badly gutted. Mrs. Knight believed she had some insurance, but no record of it is found among the local insurance agencies. During the fire Phil Quigley and George Kirkendall received badly cut hands from glass, while fighting the fire.

The congregation of the Danish Lutheran church are to be visited by two reverend gentlemen soon. Next Sunday Rev. Strandskov of the Upper Peninsula will be here and take part in the Sunday services at the local church, and on June 24th, Rev. Wagner of Denmark will be in the city. The latter came from Denmark expressly for the purpose of attending the convention of the congregations of the Danish Lutheran churches of America, that will be held in Detroit from the 17th to the 22nd, being president of a Danish society in his native country, which he will represent. His visit here no doubt will be greatly enjoyed by the Danish people.

Grayling citizens are to be congratulated for having secured someone to take charge of the boy scout and playground work for the summer. Mr. Geo. Richards of Saginaw an experienced instructor has been engaged and will begin active service the latter part of next week. And the young lady about town are to have one of the finest summers they've had. There are going to be hikes, camping, scout work and playground activities, under a capable and likable instructor. Parents too should welcome this new regulation with the greatest enthusiasm. Our boys are going to learn good things, things that will build them up physically and make them better fitted for future good manhood. Mr. Richards comes well recommended and we are sure he will enjoy his summer in Grayling just as much as the boys are going to enjoy him.

Rev. and Mrs. Lohnes of Clare are guests of R. E. Goslow and mother. They arrived today.

Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Keyport left Monday afternoon for Chicago where the Doctor will attend a national convention of the American Medical Association and attend some important surgical and medical clinics. They intend to be gone a week.

Claud Gilson and a friend were fishing trout about thirty miles below Riverview on the Manistee river last week and had a fine catch. Claud reports nine steelhead trout weighing between five and six pounds each. The largest one measured 27 inches long. He says he lost a number of trout that were larger and believes some of them would weigh as high as nine to ten pounds. Six of these he landed in one day, besides many others over 20 inches long. That was some catch and one that would be thrilling enough to last one a whole season. The water where they were was deep and swift and at times he was drenching wet, when some big fellow would drag him thru a deep hole, and at times it was necessary to swim to keep from drowning. A number of pictures were taken while in the act of landing a trout, showing them leaping into the air in their effort to get rid of the hook.

FACTS YOU MAY NOT KNOW

Women are responsible for men's vanity. The use of motor vehicles is constantly growing in Algeria. Yes, Lester, one-half of a man's energy is wasted. Only the down strokes count in chopping wood. Arsenic has been found in appreciable quantities in all organs of the human body, increasing in amount with the age of the person examined. Don't think that an apology always wipes out the offense. Why does the average spinster know so much about rearing children? The low price of native labor in China has prevented the adoption of gasoline motors. Few of us are so vain as not to claim to be of the great common people, though we feel that we're not too common at that.

SEEK LOST CURRENT

Somewhere in the North Atlantic ocean something has happened to the Arctic current. The United States coast guard has sent Lieut. Edward H. Smith (shown above in uniform), who is one of the foremost experts in oceanography, to solve the puzzle. The temperature of a whole section of the ocean has raised 7 degrees, and the usual several hundred icebergs seen at this time of year has dwindled to less than a dozen. Lieutenant Smith is shown taking the sea's temperature.

The DAIRY

BETTER COWS QUITE ESSENTIAL IN DAIRY

Dr. David Friday, formerly president of the Michigan State Agricultural college, recently pointed out a fact that is well known, but, like lots of well-known facts, seldom appreciated. The scrub dairyman gets 120,000 pounds of milk a year from 40 cows averaging 3,000 pounds each. He would be better off with 30 averaging 4,000 pounds each because he would get the same milk check with one-fourth less work and overhead. The better dairyman uses 15 cows producing 8,000 pounds each to get his milk check, while the really successful dairyman gets 120,000 pounds of milk from 12 cows averaging 10,000 pounds a year.

While the successful dairyman gets his 120,000 pounds from 12 cows instead of 40, thus cutting his overhead, labor and feed cost by nearly three-fourths, he has an added advantage which has recently been proved by the United States dairy division. This dairy division finds that cows producing 100 pounds of fat in a year made an average return above feed cost of $10 each. Cows producing 400 pounds of fat in a year made an average return above feed cost of $106. This it seems that it only took four times as great production to make the cow ten times more profitable.

With these figures in mind it is very easy to see why there are failures in the dairy business and why, also, there are such marked successes.

The way to get and keep a profitable herd is to everlastingly weed out the culs, employ better methods by keeping up-to-date on the new feeds and methods that make greater profit and, lastly, but by no means least, to use good, straight purebred dairy bulls with production records back of them. —H. R. Lascelles, Fieldman for the Colorado Dairy Commissioner.

Test Cream Separators, Is Advice of Expert

Cream separators that have not been tested for some time may be cheating their owners out of a considerable sum every week. That can be avoided, for skim milk testing will reveal the honesty of the most deceitful separator, according to C. A. Iverson of the Iowa state college.

"Surprising results have been obtained wherever fairly large numbers of hand separators have been tested," Mr. Iverson says. "In Worth county, five separators in one cow-testing association were found to be losing excessive amount of butterfat. We feel certain that there are many separators in every community that are losing butterfat for their owners. An annual loss of several dollars can easily result if the machine is not regulated or run properly.

Skim milk testing can be done by the Hubback method with a special double-necked test bottle. In place of the 17.5 cubic centimeters of acid required for whole milk, 20 are used for skim milk. Otherwise, practically the same procedure is followed as in testing whole milk. The test can be made by the farmers themselves, or if this is not convenient, by the local creamery.

Making Better Butter

Whether the product is made at home or at the creamery, matters little, the cream should be clean flavored to make good butter. To obtain practically all of the cream from the milk and have it in the best shape for butter making requires the use of a good cream separator. Further, the thorough cleaning and sterilizing of all dairy utensils is essential to the production of a product having a good flavor.

Aid Dairy Community

There are two means by which the dairy cow population of a community may be increased, by breeding through the use of pure bred bulls from proved ancestry, and by importing from other sections mature cows ready for service at the pail. In the latter case of purchase of cows, we have two alternatives—importing animals from other sections, and finding the animals within the state.

Creamery Activities

Buying activities of 308 creameries indicate that 20 per cent of the organization buy feeds, 25 per cent buy containers, and 22 per cent buy fuel. The complete list of commodities purchased by the various organizations include building material, fencing hardware, implements, general merchandise and miscellaneous products in addition to the commodities specifically enumerated.

Cream Needs Good Care

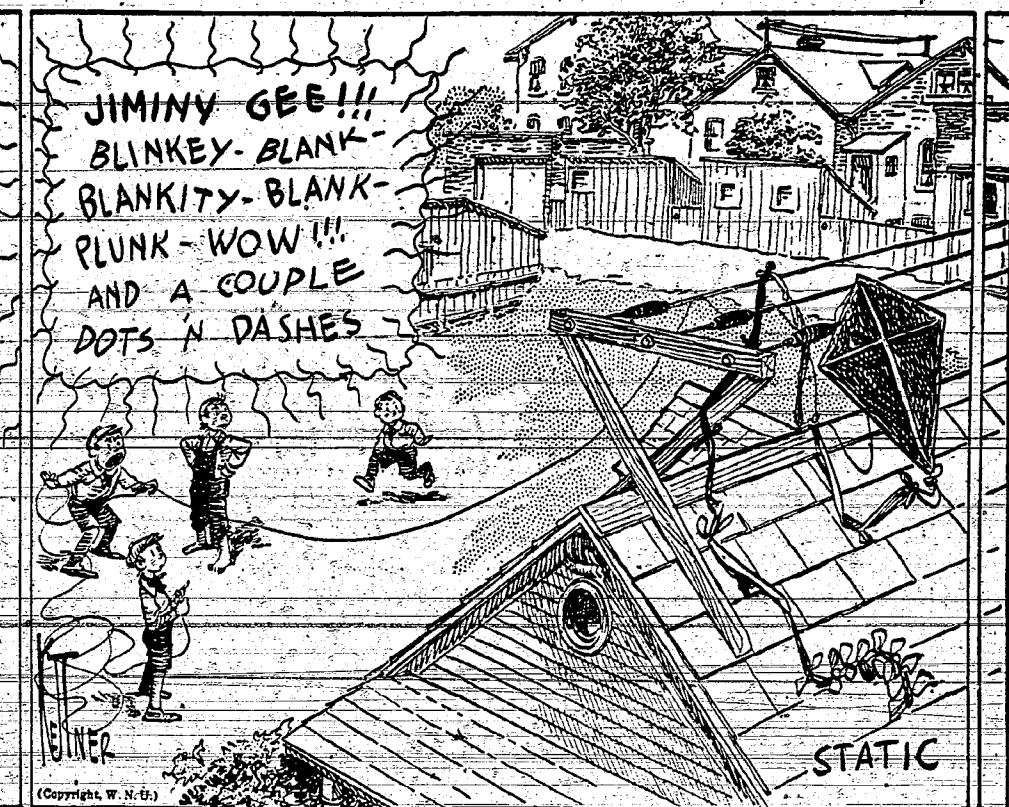

As hot weather approaches the cream must receive better care on the average farm. As soon after separating as possible, cool the cream by setting the can in cold water. Never mix the fresh cream with the cream from previous separation until cooled as low as possible. Do not keep cream too long at the farm. Poor state cream will not make good butter. If the creamery cannot make good butter the average price of cream will be lower than if good butter can be made.

Source of Succulence

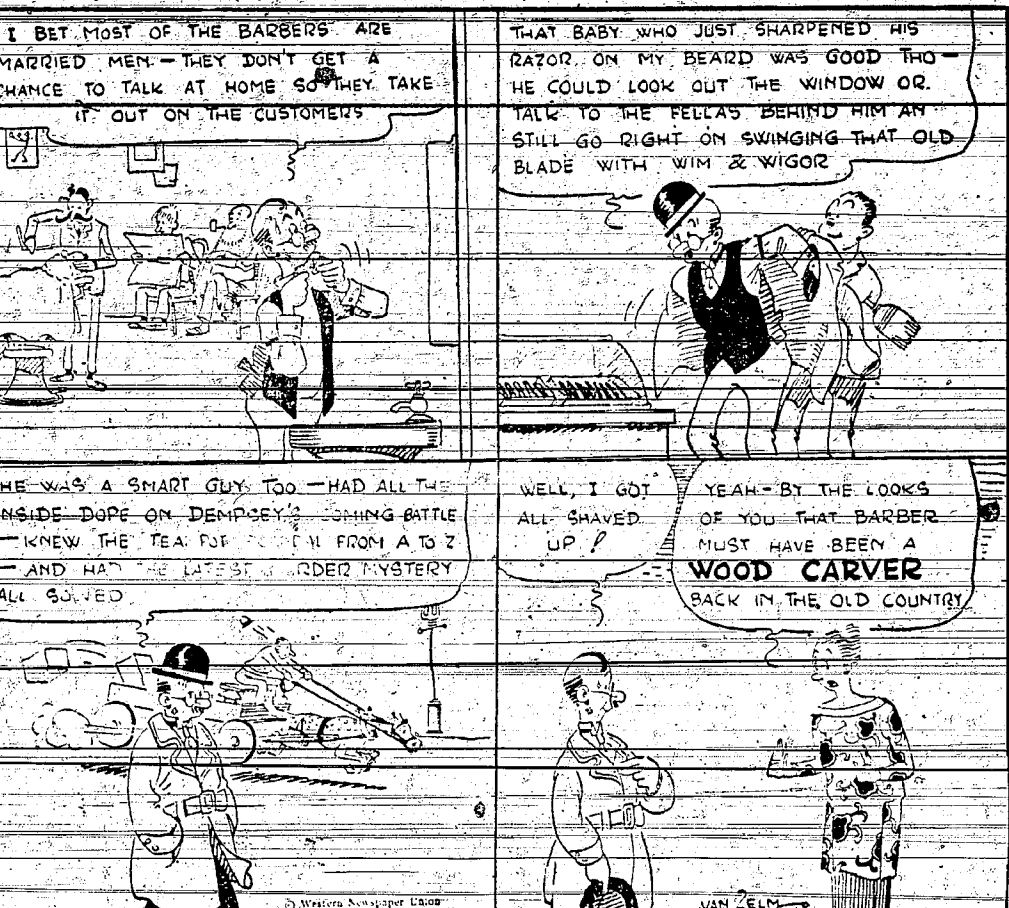

The dairyman needs a permanent source of succulence for summer feeding. Relying on blue grass pastures is often unsafe because dry spells soon burn them up. Such dry spells cause the cows to drop in milk production. Sweet clover offers an excellent pasture value to the dairyman. Sweet clover, preferably the white variety, stands up under drought conditions, grows abundantly, and does not cause bloat.

doors front and rear.

Astonishingly Easy Terms

Of the five touring cars formerly priced under $500, all but two have gone up. Overland prices have not gone up. Overland now is the only touring car with modern sliding gear transmission priced under $500.

Overland sales increased 177% last year—the greatest rate of increase of any maker building over 100,000 cars. Sales last month were the largest of any May in Overland history. Tremendous volume has enabled Overland to keep its touring car price down at $495 while other cars have been going upward in price.

The Overland price now is only $115 above the cheapest touring car built with demountable rims and starter. And you can buy an Overland on Easy Terms.

24 Big Car Quality Advantages Which You Can Count Up

Overland is the only touring car under $500 with a body entirely of steel—

The only car under $800 with a permanent finish of hard baked enamel—

The only touring car under $500 with a left front door at the driver's seat—

The only car under $500 with a speedometer as standard equipment—

The only touring car under $500 with curtains and curtain rods that open with the doors—

The only touring car under $500 with foot accelerator control—

The only touring car under $500 exclusively equipped with Timken and New Departure bearings in front and rear axles. Overland uses the best and most expensive bearings more lavishly than any other car in proportion to price.

Save the Price of Shock Absorbers!

Overland patented springs are the easiest riding springs of any light car built. They give it a spring base of 30 inches longer than any car of equal length—

The only car under $500 which does not require shock absorbers for maximum riding comfort—

The only touring car under $500 with quiet, spiral bevel drive and ring gears—

The only touring car under $500 with fully adjustable windshield—

Axles of Molybdenum Steel

Overland's rear axle shaft is Molybdenum steel 1½ inches in diameter—nearly 50% heavier than on any car under $500.

Overland brakes have 25% more braking surface in proportion to car weight, than any car under $500—and the only contracting and expanding brakes on any car under $500.

Service Records Have Proved Overland Most Economical of All Cars

No car in the world equals Overland's low day-in-and-day-out gasoline economy. No car in the world costs so little for mechanical upkeep.

In power, Overland excels all cars in or near its price class.

This you can prove to your own satisfaction by personal test in a demonstration any Overland dealer will make for you.

Spend 30 minutes examining the Overland car and you will be an Overland enthusiast. Talk to any owner of this Overland and you will be an Overland enthusiast. The more you study Overland, the more completely you will be convinced that it is the lowest cost car in the world to own and operate.
